The Program on Productivity Improvement Utilizing Digital Technology
[PIDT]

1. BACKGROUND OF THE PROGRAMS:

The Association for Overseas Technical Cooperation and Sustainable Partnerships (AOTS) is an organization for human resources development mainly in overseas countries to promote technical cooperation through training, experts dispatch and other programs. Through those programs, we aim at contributing to the mutual economic growth of developing countries and Japan as well as enhancing friendly relations among those countries.

AOTS was established in 1959 with the support of the Ministry of International Trade and Industry (which is the present Ministry of Economy, Trade and Industry: METI) as Japan's first technical cooperation organization on a private sector basis. More than 200,000 individuals from 198 countries and regions have undergone our training in Japan, while the cumulative attendance at our overseas programs till the end of fiscal 2022 exceeded 230,000.

AOTS organizes and develops a various range of training courses based on requests from returning participants and industry in developing countries.

The Program on Productivity Improvement Utilizing Digital Technology (PIDT) is a training program for managers of manufacturing sites, persons responsible for promoting DX and IoT, senior managers, etc. who are responsible for improving on-site productivity in the manufacturing industry. This program is designed for the participants to improve their ability as improvement leaders who can effectively incorporate IoT and digital technologies to promote productivity improvement activities after understanding and acquainting 5S, IE (industrial engineering), and quality control methods, which are traditional manufacturing methods used by Japanese companies, in order to enhance their ability to identify issues and make improvements onsite.

2. COUNTRY:

5. OUTLINE OF THE PROGRAM:

- OBJECTIVES

This program is designed for the participants to improve their ability as improvement leaders who can effectively incorporate IoT and digital technologies to promote productivity improvement activities after understanding and acquainting 5S, IE (industrial engineering), and quality control methods, which are traditional manufacturing methods used by Japanese companies, in order to enhance their ability to identify issues and make improvements onsite.

- KEY BENEFITS

- (1) The program will provide participants with an understanding of various manufacturing methods practiced in the Japanese manufacturing industry that increase productivity and quality by eliminating Muda(wastefulness), Muri(unreasonableness), and Mura(inconsistency) in the manufacturing process, and the ability to put these methods into practice.
- (2) Participant will acquire the ability to apply the methods understood and mastered in stage (1) with an understanding of how to apply Digital Technology to implement the methods efficiently and effectively at a higher level, and how to introduce production systems using the IoT.
- (3) Participants will discover and identify issues and problems at their company's manufacturing sites from a scientific perspective and acquire the ability to introduce management methods suited to their company and continuously promote Kaizen.

- CONTENTS

[1st Step]

Through the lecture, participants will reconfirm what productivity is in a manufacturing site. Participants will learn how to identify value-added and waste, how to create maximum value with minimum resources, and learn about the focus of improvement, conceptualization methods, specific 5S, visual management methods, IE methods, and quality control methods. In addition, participants will deepen their understanding of specific points on how to utilize IoT and digital technology in the workplace to improve productivity.

[2nd Step]

In order to improve the ability to make improvements onsite, participants will practice using LEGO bricks and a simulated production line to improve their practical improvement skills, such as the ability to notice waste, work improvement, layout and flow line improvement, process improvement, and leveling, using IE methods. In addition, participants will learn about IoT and digital technology as practical examples of DX through hands-on experience using microcomputers to visualize and improve work efficiency at workplaces without the need for large-scale system investment and with the help of on-site innovations.

[3rd Step]

Through company visits, participants will deepen their understanding of productivity improvement initiatives such as 5S, improvement activities, and quality control activities practiced by Japanese companies, as well as specific examples of how IoT and digital technologies are being used in these initiatives.

[4th Step]

Each participant will prepare and present an action plan for specific productivity improvement, including IoT and digital utilization, with reference to the methods and case studies learned in this program for the issues they are facing in their workplaces.

The course will usually consist of three hours in the morning and three hours in the afternoon. Group Discussion may take place in the evening. Please see the Tentative Schedule for further details.

- DURATION

Tuesday 19 November – Monday 2 December 2024 (14 days)

- LANGUAGE

All lectures, discussions, and company visits and exercises will be conducted in English or Japanese with translation into English. In principle, the program documents and training materials will be prepared in English.

- PROGRAM DIRECTOR

Dr. Kentaro Minagawa

Professor, Department of Data Science, Faculty of Information Science and Technology, Osaka Institute of Technology
